March 2 – March 8, 2020: The week in which Biden has the most mentions on Twitter and Warren drops out of the race. Meanwhile, the past resurfaces for him, Warren, and Sanders. Anyone else feeling the Bern? Not counting private insurance companies and Biden, of course.

elizabeth warren was an anti-lgbt republican until 1996. joe biden was an anti-lgbt conservative until 2012.

anyways, here's our boy bernie

wow this blew up 😅 guess it's time for me to tell you that 😂 i don't care about your opinion 😂

HE!!!

this just goes to show how politicians will say anything to garner support but will be so quick to change their beliefs when people point out how it's wrong. meanwhile bernie has always shown his honest nature and has never strayed from his beliefs.

is cool.

It would make the private insurance companies very, very angry if you retweeted this.

Bernie Sanders' Medicare for All policy would likely increase wages and create jobs, new economic analysis shows newsweek.com/bernie-sanders Get real, Joe. One of us has a history of not only fighting cuts to Social Security but working to expand benefits. And that's why we are the campaign best positioned to defeat Donald Trump.

Get real, Bernie. The only person who's going to cut Social Security if he's elected is Donald Trump. Maybe you should spend your time attacking him. twitter.com/BernieSanders/...

It’s been a week since the killing of Muslims in Delhi by pro-Modi Hindu nationalist mobs. Has Tulsi Gabbard said anything yet? Anything?

Still no word from Tulsi on the deadly pogroms in Delhi that her friend Modi has stoked.

Given her past comments, I’m surprised she’s not implying they deserved it.
