As she often does, @SenWarren provides a cogent summary of how federal policymakers should be thinking about the pandemic in the coming months.

Elizabeth Warren has a plan for this, too
"When you have a plan and people can see it, they can start making their plans," Warren says.

For months, I called on President Trump to step up and take the action necessary to combat COVID-19.

But week after week, he downplayed the threat it posed, misled the American people, and failed to act.

Take a look:

The former head of the CDC told the New York Times up to 80 percent of the deaths in New York could have been averted if Andrew Cuomo and Bill de Blasio reacted sooner to COVID-19. Over 8,000 are now dead. Liberals cling to the fantasy it's all Trump's fault.

Bernie Sanders ended his campaign for president and said "our movement has won the ideological struggle."

Watch him slam Republicans for opposing COVID-19 unemployment benefits and the emergency relief package.

Ron DeSantis is considering reopening Florida schools, because he doesn't believe Covid-19 kills anyone under 25. This is of course false.

It also means DeSantis doesn't value the lives of teachers, custodians, librarians, parents, and grandparents.
