NOTE: DRAFT, READINGS AND CALENDAR MAY CHANGE

BASIC INFORMATION AND RESOURCES

Instructor
Dr. Todd L. Belt
Todd L. Belt is John W. Kluge Fellow in Digital Studies at the Library of Congress and is Professor of Political Science at the University of Hawai‘i at Hilo (on leave). His research and writing focuses on the mass media, public opinion, the presidency, campaigns and elections. He is the co-author of four books, over a dozen chapters in edited scholarly books, and over two dozen articles appearing in academic journals.

Dr. Belt received his B.A. in Economics and Political Science and the University of California, Irvine, and his M.A. and Ph.D. in Political Science at the University of Southern California. Dr. Belt has worked as a research consultant for interest groups, think tanks and media corporations. Dr. Belt has been a lecturer or instructor at numerous universities and has held visiting positions at Wellesley College at Kyungpook University (Daegu, South Korea). He is a frequent contributor to media reporting on politics and is the recipient of two teaching awards.

Contact Information
Phone: 808-640-3365
Email: tbelt@hawaii.edu

Communication
I prefer in-person communication before or after class so that I can answer all of your questions fully and gauge your understanding of my comments (you may also email to schedule appointments). For brief questions, e-mail is fine, and I will try to respond within 24 hours. In case of emergency you may reach me by phone.

Blackboard Site
A Blackboard website has been set up for this course. Each student is expected to use the site to access readings, submit papers, and obtain their grades. In short, Blackboard will be the primary venue for outside classroom communications. Students can access the site at https://blackboard.gwu.edu. Tech support is available at 202-994-4948 or http://helpdesk.gwu.edu.
Academic Integrity
All members of the university community are expected to exhibit honesty and competence in their academic work. Students have a special responsibility to acquaint themselves with, and make use of, all proper procedures for doing research, writing papers, and taking exams. Members of the community will be presumed to be familiar with the proper academic procedures and will be held responsible for applying them. Deliberate failure to act in accordance with such procedures will be considered academic dishonesty. Academic dishonesty is defined as “cheating of any kind, including misrepresenting one’s own work, taking credit for the work of others without crediting them and without appropriate authorization, and the fabrication of information.” Acts of academic dishonesty are a legal, moral, and intellectual offense against the community and will be prosecuted through the proper university channels. The University Code of Academic Integrity can be found at http://studentconduct.gwu.edu/code-academic-integrity.

Support for Students with Disabilities
George Washington University’s Disability Support Services (DSS) provides and coordinates accommodations and other services for students with a wide variety of disabilities, as well as those temporarily disabled by injury or illness. Accommodations are available through DSS. Please also be sure to notify me of your disability, should you require accommodations. Additional information is available at www.gwu.edu/~dss.

In the Event of an Emergency or Crisis During Class
If we experience some an emergency during class time, we will try to stay at this location until we hear that we can move about safely. If we must leave here, we will meet at the lobby level of the Media & Public Affairs Building (805 21st Street, NW) to account for everyone and to make certain that everyone is safe. Please refer to Campus Advisories for the latest information on the University’s operating status: http://www.campusadvisories.gwu.edu.

Attendance Policy
Attending class is required. Should you find yourself with a scheduling conflict, please contact me as soon as you are aware of the issue to let me know that you will absent, otherwise, it will be considered an unexcused absence and it will negatively count against your participation grade. Simply put, you must attend class to participate. Three or more class absences during the spring semester (1/5 of the classes) will result in a failing class participation grade.

Course Evaluation
At the end of the semester, students will be given the opportunity to evaluate the course through GW’s online course evaluation system. It is very important that you take the time to complete an evaluation. Students are also encouraged to provide feedback throughout the course of the semester by contacting any of the following:

THE COURSE

Course Description and Overview
This course explores the role of humor in politics and how it can be employed to make campaigns more effective. In doing so, we borrow Harold Lasswell’s (1948) communication model: “Who, says what, in what channel, to whom, with what effect” to structure our course by analyzing the communicator, the message (including the target), the medium, the audience, and the effect of political humor. Students will draw upon lessons gleaned from course material in order to create humorous campaign media materials (“deliverables” below) and to develop a “humor campaign strategy memo.”

Course Learning Objectives
By the end of the course, the students will be able to:

1. Explain how the impact of political humor varies based upon the characteristics of the communicator, the message, the medium, and the audience.
2. Evaluate differing types of impacts of political humor, including knowledge acquisition, partisan reinforcement, behavioral stimulation, and opinion persuasion.
3. Interpret the different approaches to political humor used by liberals and conservatives.
4. Explain the relative advantages and drawbacks of different media as they pertain to political humor, specifically text, audio, visual, and audiovisual media.
5. Evaluate how humor interacts with individuals’ pre-existing ideologies, partisanship, morals, values, emotions, identities, and knowledge bases.
6. Produce effective humorous political media.
7. Develop a “humor campaign strategy memo” that, based upon research and course material, details a plan for a candidate to employ and respond to political humor.

Additional Note: Class Content Disclaimer and Expected and Decorum
This class deals with political humor, and the line between offensive and funny varies for each individual. Be warned: We will be analyzing humor that may be considered sexist, racist, ageist, homophobic, or otherwise objectionable to many people. What one person finds humorous another may find offensive (or vice-versa). You may also find other students’ interpretations of humor to be distasteful. An important aspect of this class is for you to find out where this line is for yourself. How much is too much? How far are you willing to go and to let others go?
However, this content is not an invitation to poor behavior in the class. I expect students to conduct themselves with civility towards one another. Any student directing an offensive comment towards another will be asked to leave.

Course Requirements
Students will receive a letter grade for each requirement. Descriptions detailing the expectations for the four deliverables and memo, as well as a grading rubric, are provided below. Final course grades will be calculated by weighing assignment grade by the percentage weight for the following components:
Using Humor Strategically – Belt – Page 5 of 14

Component | Percent | Notes
--- | --- | ---
Reading Group Assignments | 20% | Due throughout, description below
Text Deliverable | 10% | Due Week 4, Individually produced
Visual Deliverable | 10% | Due Week 6, Individually produced
Audio Deliverable | 10% | Due Week 8, Team produced
Audiovisual Deliverable | 20% | Due Week 12, Group produced
Campaign Strategy Memo | 20% | Due Week 14, Individually produced
Participation | 10% | Contributions to class discussion throughout

Assignments are due at the time of the course meeting. If your assignment is not ready by the beginning of the course meeting, you will be penalized a full course grade for each course period it is late. Extensions will not be given except in cases of a verified emergency.
Reading Groups
For each assigned week, you will be tasked with one of four reading group roles. You are to type or handwrite your comments on hard-copy before you arrive (not after you arrive). If you do not show up with your completed comments, you will be asked to leave class until discussion is over and your assignment will be treated as late (see above). If you have not thought-out and written-out your comments, you are not prepared (you are not prepared if your comments are merely “in your head”). Comments will be collected at the end of discussion.

Discussion Director
You are the leader of your group, and it is your responsibility to begin the discussion, to keep it moving, and maintain a focus on the readings for the duration of the discussion. It is your job to elicit (make the other people in the group discuss) a brief summary of the assigned reading. Be prepared with a list of at least five (5) questions (at least one per reading) to elicit discussion in such a way as to get the most out of your conversation (don’t just ask: “What did you think about X?”). You are responsible for ensuring a polite and respectful conversation, and to ensure that everyone has a chance to speak and that no student dominates the conversation or is left out. Make sure everyone has a chance to share their prepared comments.

Methodologist
Your job is also to help turn the reading experience into something that will benefit you and your group as political analysts. Specifically, you must imagine yourself as the writer of the assigned reading, and identify at least five (5) choices (at least one per reading) you made in order to convince your audience of your thesis. The choices you imagine can deal with data and evidence (most important), examples, and logical arguments. You must cite the page and line numbers of the examples you’ve chosen to discuss (so that others can find it), and a brief explanation as to why you think the writer made the methodological choices s/he did.

Connector
Your job is to ensure that this continues to be a semester-long conversation that builds on prior knowledge. You must refer specifically to previous readings, and to specific passages in those readings, as they pertain to the current week’s readings. Identify at least five (5) connections (at least one per reading) between the current reading and previous readings, and cite them by author, page number, and line number. You don’t have to copy down the whole passage that “connects,” just the key words. You must construct a question to stimulate discussion regarding each connection (something more sophisticated than “what do you think of this?”).

Applier
You must integrate the course material by reference to real-world situations. You must develop a list of at least five (5) applications (at least one per reading) where the material from the reading applies to a political issue, current (preferably) or past, OR to a specific lesson on how to use humor in the context of a political campaign. You must explain why and how it applies. Be sure to reference where you found the applied material with a full citation. Your list of applications should be phrased in a way that stimulates discussion or even disagreement among your group.

Media Deliverables and Campaign Strategy Memo
Text Deliverable: Produce a funny piece of text one page long (such as a letter or speech) in support of or opposition to a candidate or issue. The author may “be” the candidate him/herself or someone else.
Visual Deliverable: Produce a funny cartoon, meme, sticker, t-shirt, or other visual still image in support of or opposition to a candidate or issue.
Audio Deliverable: You will team with another student to produce a funny 30-second audio file (radio ad or brief stump speech) in support of or opposition to a candidate or issue.
Audiovisual Deliverable: You will group together in a group of four to produce a funny 60-second audiovisual file (campaign ad) in support of or opposition to a candidate or issue.
The Campaign Strategy Memo is a five-page memo from yourself as communications director to the campaign manager of a political campaign (candidate or issue-based). You are to create, describe, and explain the use of humor in a political campaign through various media in support of a candidate/issue. You must create a memo that describes who, will be saying what, in what channel, to whom, with what effect.

Grading of Media Deliverables
Turn in all deliverables as a digital file to me via email. We will view/listen and discuss each of them as a group. Each student, team, or group will be asked what material from class was incorporated into the deliverable. Peer evaluations on team and group projects may be used as part of the instructor’s evaluation process, which will be guided by the following rubric:

Learning Materials
We will be reading approximately 75 pages of material per week which may be supplemented by other media. These materials will include book chapters and articles (roughly three per week, supplied on Blackboard) as well as web media content (linked on Blackboard). I reserve the right to update media materials one week before class in order to keep content current.

Tentative Course Calendar
The instructor reserves the right to alter course content, include guest speakers, and/or adjust the pace to accommodate class progress. Students are responsible for keeping up with all adjustments to the course calendar.
