Fiona Conroy is a senior vice president at Mack-Sumner Communications, one of the nation’s leading Democratic communications firms. Her clients include Planned Parenthood, Sierra Club, the United Food and Commercial Workers (UFCW), International Association of Fire Fighters (IAFF), Gov. Tom Wolf (D-Penn.), and congressional and state legislative candidates across the country.

In addition to her strategic communications and direct mail work, Fiona has extensive campaign management experience. In 2015, she managed the independent expenditure that helped Democrats sweep all three open Pennsylvania Supreme Court seats.

In 2012, she managed U.S. Senator Joe Manchin's successful re-election campaign in West Virginia. Fiona previously served as North Carolina Governor Bev Perdue’s campaign manager and as executive director of the Pennsylvania House Democratic Campaign Committee, one of the nation’s largest and most complex legislative caucus operations.

Fiona received an MA in Political Management and degree BA in History, both from The George Washington University.

Fiona is the Vice President of Programs for The George Washington University Alumni Association Board of Directors. She has served on the GWAA Board since 2009.

Jonathan E. Kaplan is the senior communications officer for the Open Society Foundations in Washington, D.C. He works closely with the staff to develop and implement communications and advocacy strategies on behalf of the Foundations.

Since 1996, Jonathan has worked on a wide range of domestic and U.S. foreign policy issues. From 2009 to 2012, he served in the U.S. Department of State as the communications director and speechwriter for the Under Secretary of State for Arms Control and International Security, Ellen Tauscher and for Deputy Secretary of State Thomas R. Nides.

From 2002 to 2009, he was a senior staff writer for The Hill newspaper, the Washington, D.C., correspondent for the Portland Press Herald-Maine Sunday Telegram, an editorial assistant at The American Lawyer, and a freelance reporter. His writing has appeared in the New York Times, Washington Post, Foreign Policy.com, and San Francisco Chronicle. He previously served as an aide in Vice President Gore’s office, a legislative assistant for former U.S. Rep. Ken Bentsen (Texas), and an economic policy analyst at the Progressive Policy Institute.

He received his BA from Colby College and an MA in Public Policy from the University of Chicago. He lives in Washington with his wife and three-year-old son.

Communication
This course is being team taught. Please address all electronic communications to both instructors. We prefer to be contacted by e-mail, unless it is an emergency, in which case you may call us at the cell phone numbers above. We will respond within 24 hours to all student e-mails. If you would like to arrange an appointment to discuss your work or progress, one of us will be available each week for an hour prior to class.

Blackboard Site
A Blackboard course site has been set up for this course. Each student is expected to check the site throughout the semester, as Blackboard will be the primary venue for outside classroom communications between the instructors and the students. Students can access the course site at https://blackboard.gwu.edu. Support for Blackboard is available at 202-994-4948 or helpdesk.gwu.edu.
Academic Integrity
All members of the university community are expected to exhibit honesty and competence in their academic work. Students have a special responsibility to acquaint themselves with, and make use of, all proper procedures for doing research, writing papers, and taking exams. Members of the community will be presumed to be familiar with the proper academic procedures and will be held responsible for applying them. Deliberate failure to act in accordance with such procedures will be considered academic dishonesty. Academic dishonesty is defined as “cheating of any kind, including misrepresenting one’s own work, taking credit for the work of others without crediting them and without appropriate authorization, and the fabrication of information.” Acts of academic dishonesty are a legal, moral, and intellectual offense against the community and will be prosecuted through the proper university channels. The University Code of Academic Integrity can be found at http://www.gwu.edu/~ntegrity/code.html.

Support for Students with Disabilities
GW’s Disability Support Services (DSS) provides and coordinates accommodations and other services for students with a wide variety of disabilities, as well as those temporarily disabled by injury or illness. Accommodations are available through DSS to facilitate academic access for students with disabilities. Please notify your instructor if you require accommodations. Additional information is available at www.gwu.edu/~dss.

In the Event of an Emergency or Crisis during Class
If we experience some an emergency during class time, we will try to stay at this location until we hear that we can move about safely. If we have to leave here, we will meet at [TBD] in order to account for everyone and to make certain that everyone is safe. Please refer to Campus Advisories for the latest information on the University’s operating status: http://www.campusadvisories.gwu.edu/.

Attendance Policy
Attending class is required. Should you find yourself with a scheduling conflict, please contact us as soon as you are aware of the issue to let us know that you will absent. Otherwise, it will be considered an unexcused absence and it will negatively count against your participation grade.

Course Evaluation
At the end of the semester, students will be given the opportunity to evaluate the course through GW’s online course evaluation system. It is very important that you take the time to complete an evaluation. Students are also encouraged to provide feedback throughout the course of the semester by contacting any/all of the following:

THE COURSE

Political Management Program Objectives

1. Assess a political environment, develop an appropriate strategy to achieve specified goals, and execute that strategy.
2. Draw upon a repertoire of effective communication skills and techniques for use in a political environment.
3. Collect, evaluate and incorporate relevant empirical evidence to shape, optimize, and continuously inform the development of a communications strategy.
4. Find, engage, and motivate the essential government officials, lawmakers, professionals/influencers, and voters/citizens to implement your strategy and achieve your goal(s).
5. Recognize and work through recurring political dilemmas in a manner that upholds ethical standards in the profession and exhibits principled leadership.

Course Description and Overview

In politics, whether you are working to elect a candidate or pass legislation, learning how to communicate with, target, persuade, and influence voters, constituents, lawmakers, or any other group, are key ingredients to winning.

Successful political and issue advocacy campaigns reach the right people with the right messages. The people managing those campaigns develop messaging, create the means on how to communicate those messages, and choose the right person to deliver those messages. The campaigns know which groups they need to persuade, they find them, influence them, and hopefully mobilize them to take action.

This course is designed for GSPM students to explore the differences between specialized forms of communication. The class is designed to help students build a foundation based on the fundamentals of political communication; learn specific tools and aspects of communications; and then connect the dots on how to conceive of, design, and implement a communications strategy to achieve specific campaign goals.
This will be an applied knowledge class. Students will be asked to use what they have learned to assess current campaign strategies and rhetoric to understand, interpret, and advise on-going political campaigns, issue advocacy campaigns, and work within crisis situations. Students will continue to learn how to evaluate and dissect opponents’ messages with a critical and strategic eye.

We will review previous elections, analyze advocacy campaigns, and study the current election to inform our thinking and provide a base of knowledge to draw on in the future.

Course Learning Objectives

1. Analyze and understand the construction of campaign messages and the dynamics of political communication in an election.
2. Develop effective political messages.
3. Adapt political communications to respond to events, while continuing to align and reinforce longer term goals and strategies.
4. Clean, clear, mistake-free writing to get your point across whether it’s inside a campaign or public messaging.
5. Formulate and execute political communications and strategies using paid, earned, and owned media across traditional and digital media channels.

Course Requirements

Every week, students must show up prepared to discuss the news. We will start each class by discussing the previous week’s political and policy news. You will be asked to evaluate events and discuss their impact on electoral politics and policy issues. You will be asked to share something you read that week that you feel was either interesting, perplexing, or beneficial to your understanding of political campaigns and campaign rhetoric, tactics, and the use of images.

Week 1, May 17: INTRODUCTION: THE BUILDING BLOCKS OF COMMUNICATIONS AND MESSAGING STRATEGY (CONROY AND KAPLAN)

What is applied political communications? Where and how does your communications and campaign strategy intersect? In this class we will discuss the elements of communications planning, and how these determine who you need to reach, influence, and target. Additionally, the class will explore how to construct a winning narrative.

Topic and Content Covered & Learning Objective(s) Addressed:

- Introduction
- Overview of the course, books, and outside readings
- In-class expectations and assignments
  - We want to be clear: We will be grading in whole points and half-points. For example, if an assignment is worth 15 points, you could earn 13.5 or 14. There will be no extra credit.
  - We expect you to read the newspaper, either the Washington Post, New York Times, Politico, and other political-oriented news outlets (Wall Street Journal, NPR, etc).
  - Since this is a class about communicating with the media and policymakers, we expect that you will actively follow Twitter, although there’s no requirement that you Tweet. But we want you to be where the audience is.
- How should you think about communications and writing?
- What is the messaging environment and how does it impact your plans?
- What are communication tools and channels?
- Communication planning and the situation analysis
  - Who are the voters/supporters you have, who are the voters/supporters you want or need?
  - Who is your audience? Who do you want to persuade? What action do you want them to take?
- Demographics and Geographics
- Apply your candidates to the race and issues to the environment, identifying strengths and weaknesses
- Formulating a winning narrative: What’s your rationale for running and for winning?
- What is your budget?

June 21, Week 6
THE PRESS & COMMUNICATIONS (KAPLAN)

Every aspect of the news industry is under enormous strain. News organizations continue to face severe financial pressure (although, given the rise of Donald Trump, some have experienced a temporary wave of good fortune) Publishers demand more of editors. Editors demand more of reporters, who are asked to report more stories, faster than ever, better than everyone else, across print, digital, video, and social media channels. So reporters inevitably expect and demand more of communications directors working on campaigns, for advocacy organizations, and in the government. Frankly, dealing with reporters is sometimes challenging and complicated, and for some, even nerve-wracking. We will discuss strategies for working with the press and getting the most favorable coverage possible in this fast-paced demanding environment and give you the tools to protect those you are working for and yourselves.

Topic and Content Covered & Learning Objective(s) Addressed:
- Role of the press in your campaign
- How a journalist sees the world
- Why (good) writing matters
- Is anything off-the-record??
- How to pitch a story?
- Important dates within an election cycle, including FEC filing periods, holidays, Congressional recess, anniversaries, and holidays
- Communicating with the press
- Pitching the press/good press
- Media Training and Preparing Materials
- Press calendar/crafting plans and executing press events/media tours
- Creating “carry forward” from your events
- Message discipline & rapid response
- The art of the leak / handing out exclusives
